

About The Event

The utilization of canines to provide emotional support, has been widely accepted in society. However, the lack of clear guidelines and regulations has created confusion and uncertainty among businesses and institutions.

Crisis Response Canines (CRC), Animal Assist Canine Academy (AACAA), and The Hero Academy have come together to host an event on April 15-16 at Harrah's in Atlantic City, NJ. The National Symposium aims to facilitate open and honest discussions regarding the expectations of teams participating in Goal-Based Canine Interventions.

The goal of the symposium is to garner input, support dialogue, discuss current research, trends and ethical considerations within the realm of Goal Based Canine Interventions. We intend to emerge from this event with recommendations for standards for teams engaged in Goal-Based Canine Interventions.

Event Spotlight

To educate participants on animal assisted capabilities and standards

Invite participants to discuss potential standards for goal-based canine interventions

Make participants aware of goal-based canine intervention objectives and training.

our presence at this symposium is not only an opportunity to expand your knowledge but also a chance to contribute to the collective efforts in elevating the science behind crisis response canine interventions.
